Secretary reminds employees: Law opens your records

In the last legislative session, the General Assembly passed and Gov. Bev Perdue signed a new ethics law that changes the statute controlling state employees public information. The statute -- GS 126-23 (a) -- became effective Oct. 1.

The additional information now public about employees includes:

- ▶ Your salary history with the State of North Carolina.
- ▶ The date and type of these state personnel transactions: Promotion, demotion, transfer, suspension, separation and change in position classification.
- ▶ The general reason for any promotion you have achieved with the state.

The changes to the law also make, for the first time, dismissal letters public information.

The department has created a work group that is working on the process for handling these employee public information requests statewide.

If you have questions about these changes, please contact your workplace manager.

N.C. Department of Correction Honor Guard officers flank the Memorial Wall space dedicated to fallen correctional officers. The table holds the candles and roses displayed in honor of the 10 fallen officers, and the wall displays "A Correctional Officer's Prayer." The Honor Guard officers are Maj. Everett Green, assistant commander, of Sanford Correctional Institution; and Col. Leonard Hatley, commander, N.C. Correctional Institution for Women.

School honors fallen officers

f RALEIGH | Wake Technical Community College has created a space to honor Department of Correction officers who died in the line of duty.

The school's Public Safety Education Campus has a Memorial Wall, a portion of which was dedicated on Nov. 10 to honor fallen DOC officers. The honor includes a plaque that is inscribed with "Lost but not forgotten."

Officers honored "for their courage, sacrifice and service" from 1939 to 1999 were James S. Chesser, Kermit D. Jackson, Earl C. Strickland, Jenette W. Fish, Randall C. Cupp, Alan P. Kirk, Leslie J. Besci, Sarah M. Valentine, David W. Anthony, and Shannon Smith.

'Plane crash' tests readiness

YouTube f LUMBERTON | It was gory. People were screaming. Ambulances came with sirens blaring. Bodies and body parts were everywhere. Luckily, the scene was only a mock disaster exercise.

The airplane crash disaster drill was conducted at Lumberton Correctional Institution on November 9. The Robeson County facility conducts annual medical drills, but this was the first to involve outside agencies. Medical staff decided the airplane crash scenario would be helpful because of the prison's proximity to the Lumberton airport just a couple of miles away.

Certified Public Managers

Six DOC employees were in the 2010 graduating class of the N.C. Certified Public Manager Program. Over the past two years, they have completed 10 courses, two post-course assessments and applied their knowledge to an organizational improvement project. The program is accredited by the National Certified Public Manager Consortium. Secretary Alvin Keller, right, presented the certificates during the graduation ceremony. Receiving the certificates were, front row, Scott Peele, Division of Prisons security chief; Vivian Brake, assistant superintendent-programs, Fountain Correctional Center for Women; and Tresa Brown-Tomlinson, assistant superintendent-programs, Harnett CI. Back row, Linwood Sutton, assistant superintendent, Duplin CI; Curtis Jones, food service manager, Scotland Correctional Institution; and John Godfrey, assistant superintendent-programs, Albemarle CI.

Treatment center fire displaces 98 inmates

A Nov. 7 fire at a contracted drug and alcohol treatment center produced a scramble to find secure alternate lodging for the 98 minimum custody inmates at the facility.

Division of Prisons central and regional officials responded quickly to evacuate the inmates from Evergreen Substance Abuse Treatment Center and then move them to secure space at Hoke Correctional Institution.

The fire was believed to have begun in an overhead area in the treatment facility's clothes house, activating the sprinkler system. The resulting water spray damaged the center's electrical system, making the inmates' evacuation necessary.

Collaborating on an action plan were Deputy Director Ricky Anderson, South Central Region Director Pat Chavis, Robeson Correctional Center Superintendent Frederick Hubbard, Hoke Correctional Institution Assistant Superintendent Pete Buchholtz and Scotland CI Administrator Joel Herron.

Four buses were dispatched to Evergreen to transfer the 98 inmates and their property to Hoke CI. There, some of the inmates were assigned to available beds within the facility, and the visitation area floor accommodated the remaining inmates.

Scotland CI provided the needed additional bedding and linens for the inmates.

Arrangements were also made for the Hoke CI food service staff to feed 98 additional inmates.

Repairs were made at Evergreen, and the inmates were returned on Nov. 12.

A local emergency medical technician, left, examines a "victim" for possible neck injury. Playing the victim role is Rodney Sinclair, a road squad officer. Helping with the examination are Lumberton CI's Teresa Davis (standing), a staff nurse, and Cornelius Jones, licensed practical nurse.

The ceremony included family members lighting candles and laying white roses in front of the memorial space, a presentation by the DOC Honor Guard and bagpipe music.

"We thank Wake Tech for creating this permanent tribute," said Secretary Alvin Keller. "It's about remembering and paying tribute."

Wake Tech established the Memorial Wall to honor all public safety personnel who lost their lives in the line of duty.

"They died as they lived -- safeguarding peace and preserving justice," said Dr. James T. Edwards, the school's assistant dean and director of public safety.

Disaster drill, from first page

Patrol, area sheriff's departments, fire departments, rescue teams, the Red Cross and other agencies participated in the event. Field medical triage personnel reported that seven victim actors needed transport to medical facilities and that two would need airlift to other treatment facilities.

Inmates created props for the exercise such as a plane cockpit and wings while medical staff members created other effects to make the injuries appear real.

Lumberton administrator Sandra Thomas said the exercise was conducted flawlessly and proved extremely valuable not only to the prison staff but to agencies involved. She planned to conduct an after-event briefing to analyze the exercise and to help plan for future events.

As one would expect, the prison's security measures were on high alert.

Betty Bauer

New leader named for DCC Division 3

KERNERSVILLE | Veteran probation manager Betty Bauer is the new administrator for Community Corrections Division 3 in the state's Piedmont region.

Geographically, the division covers 22 counties in 12 Community Corrections districts. Counties in Community Corrections Division 3 are Alexander, Alleghany, Anson, Ashe, Cabarrus, Davidson, Davie, Forsyth, Guilford, Iredell, Montgomery, Moore, Randolph, Richmond, Rockingham, Rowan, Stanly, Stokes, Surry, Union, Wilkes and Yadkin.

The division's 656 officers and other employees provide supervision of 24,775 offenders.

Bauer joined the department in 1979 as a court intake officer in Davidson County. She moved up through the ranks, reaching assistant division administrator, where she served eight years before retiring in February 2010.

The Appalachian State University graduate has a bachelor of science degree in political science. She is also a graduate of the department's Correctional Leadership Development Program.

Bauer and her husband have two daughters. When not working, she enjoys working out and golf.

Harnett CI has new leadership

LILLINGTON | Carlton Joyner is the new superintendent at Harnett Correctional Institution.

The facility houses 850 medium-custody male inmates, and it employs 385 officers and administrative staff members. It offers a wide range of educational and vocational programs for inmates. It is home to the state's only in-prison treatment program for sex offenders and a newly opened school that teaches inmates to become barbers. Correction Enterprises operates a plant at Harnett CI to process meat and frozen foods for the state's prisons.

Joyner, a 26-year Department of Correction veteran, began his career as a correctional officer at Central Prison. He worked his way through the ranks in correctional programs, most recently coordinating transition and re-entry efforts for the Division of Prisons.

Joyner has a bachelor's degree in political science from N.C. Central University. He has completed the Department of Correction's leadership development program and the state's Certified Public Managers Program.

Active in his church and fraternity, Joyner also enjoys time with his family and playing golf. He and wife, Katina, have a daughter, Kalyn.

Lawrence Solomon

Lawrence Solomon at helm of Polk CI

BUTNER | Lawrence Solomon, a 29-year Department of Correction veteran, has been named the new administrator at Polk Correctional Institution.

Polk CI is a prison for approximately 1,010 close-custody male inmates ages 19-25. It has 545 officers and administrative employees.

Solomon spent 26 years of his corrections career working at Caledonia Correctional Institution, where he was named administrator in 2006. He retired in 2009. For three years, he was administrator at Odom Correctional Institution.

Solomon also commanded the Division of Prisons' Central Region Prison Emergency Response Team. The Enfield native has an associate's degree in criminal justice.

Solomon succeeds Randy Lee, who was promoted to the Division of Prison's Central Region.

Hodges in charge at Durham Correctional

HILLSBOROUGH | Armstead Hodges is the new superintendent of Durham Correctional Center.

The prison is a minimum security facility that houses approximately 215 male inmates. It employs 42 officers and administrative staff members.

Hodges, who succeeds Joyce Kornegay, had been assistant superintendent since 2005 at Orange Correctional, where he was acting superintendent January-November 2009. Hodges began his career as a correctional officer at Caswell Correctional Center in 1988.

He attended Rockingham Community College, is active in community civic organizations, and was twice nominated for a State Employee Award for Excellence.
